Where Alumni Work

Those in the sports industry always have an interest in sports. A Sport Management degree will help you gain unique perspectives on ways to apply business principles to off-the-field situations.

The curriculum for the A.S. Sport Management degree is designed to prepare students to further study toward a bachelor's degree and parallels the first two years of study required by similar programs offered at four-year institutions. The majority of sport management jobs are found in marketing, sales, and administration.

Why You Belong Here

Our student-centered approach addresses the needs of both traditional and non-traditional learners. Courses at Manor College build academic confidence through a small, personalized and nurturing setting. A faculty advisor and counselor work closely to make sure your program of study is best suited to your future academic interests.

Other features:

- Flexible, individualized academic program
- Small classes and personalized advising
- Articulation agreements with area four-year colleges ensure easy transfer of credits

Manor College offers a variety of scholarships for students. These include merit-based scholarships, state grants and partial tuition scholarships.
